BREED THEATER.

"Cowboy's Argument," Thrilling Motion Picture.

A thrilling and sensational motion picture shown at the Breed theater last evening was the one called Cowboy's Argument, and proved to be a most interesting one. It has a story line of novel interest in the line of episodes, to carry out the plot, and met with instant success. The monster scenic picture, A Trip Through Yellowstone Park, is one of rare beauty, and shows all the splendors of this great reservation, including all of the famous geysers, the canyons, the tinted palisades and the wild animals. This is a very long reel, and holds the audience spellbound by its majestic grandeur during its exhibition. The historical picture of Oliver Cromwell is handsomely colored and all the famous incidents of his life are clearly represented, the picturesque garments adding much to the already beautiful background. An unusually long bill of comedy is shown, and includes Any Port in a Storm, Talked to Death, The Interrupted Joy Ride, and A Fight for Love. Mr. Delaney is singing the famous California song, entitled In the Garden of the West, which is accompanied by exquisite scenic slides. Madame Morelle is continuing her success by rendering the catchy waltz song, Senora, which she is compelled to repeat to the satisfaction of the audience.

The Auditorium.

The bill for the week beginning Monday, May the twenty-fourth, promises to be fully as attractive as the one now showing at the Auditorium. It will be headed by a musical act which is said to be one of the best of its kind now on the stage. It consists of three people, father, mother and daughter, and is entitled The Three Musical Millers, featuring Miss Hazel Miller in Music, Song and Story, who is probably the best musician in the world considering her age.

Leslie and Baker present a very neat singing and dancing quick change act similar to that of William Cross and Josephine, which made such a big hit here about six weeks ago and will surely entertain their audiences in a most pleasing manner during their engagement here next week.

Arthur Moore, in a novel pianoleg act, will be seen doing all kinds of stunts with a piano, and should win a big hand, as he is ranked among the best in his profession.

An act of great merit and different from anything seen at the house before will be the Liacomb brothers, who do aerial work and many sensational stunts in lifting and holding with their teeth.

The pictures for the coming week will be as usual among the best to be had. The feature reel for the first three days is entitled The Fatal Card and is a thrilling picture of western horse thieves. Troubles of a Stranded Actor is a funny picture, in which an actor is not all smooth sailing and full of enjoyment. Other comedy reels will be Love Germs, The Colored Stevedore and Mary Jane's Lovers.

How Irving Wanted to Die.

Ellen Terry, in her account of her last visit to Henry Irving, says that she asked him what he had got out of life. In McClure's Magazine she tells how he answered her.

"What have I got out of it?" said Henry, stroking his chin and smiling slightly. "Let me see. . . . Well, a good cigar, a good glass of wine—good friends—." Here he kissed my hand with courtesy. Always he was so courteous—always his actions, like this little one of kissing my hand, were so beautifully timed. They came just before the spoken words, and gave them peculiar value.

"That's not a bad summing up of it all," I said. "And the end. . . . How would you like that to come?" "How would I like that to come?" He repeated my question lightly, yet meditatively, too. Then he was silent for some 30 seconds before he snapped his fingers—the action again before the words.

"Like that!"

China a Collection of Nations.

China is not a nation in the sense in which we ordinarily use the word. If we picture to ourselves the countries of Europe, with their different languages and different customs, drawn together into a loose confederation under the government of a conquering race, we shall have some small conception of what this Chinese "nation" really is.

The peoples of these different European countries are all Caucasians; the different peoples of China are all Mongolians. These Chinese peoples speak 18 or 20 distinct languages, each divided into almost innumerable dialects and subdialects. They are governed by Manchu, or Tartar, conquerors who spring from a different stock, wear different costumes, and speak among themselves a language wholly different from any of the 18 or 20 native tongues.—Success Magazine.

Robbing Dante's Tomb.

Robbing a blind man is commonly regarded as about the meanest crime a person can commit, but stealing the oil from a sepulchral lamp seems to run it pretty close.

Some time ago all Italy associated itself with a project to keep a lamp continually burning on Dante's tomb at Ravenna, and recently the same was kindled with great ceremony in the presence of representatives of all the chief towns in the country.

But the other day it was found to have gone out. The publication of the news caused indignation, which was intensified by the discovery that someone had stolen the oil from the sacred lamp.—New York Sun.
